Equine Personal Wellness Programs

We use horses to overcome grief, trauma, debilitating psychological difficulties, interpersonal issues and general self empowerment. The age or physical ability of the client does not matter nor does prior experience as all sessions with the horses are done easily and safely from the ground.

The use of horses as clinical assistants allows our clients new opportunities to make deep and life-affirming changes in their relationships with others and inwardly, to accept and be at peace with their inner self.

For many of our clients, being with the horses under our skilled guidance allows clients to experience, perhaps for the first time in their life, what we call a 'pure relationship' – a mutually involving relationship with another sentient being without having to worry or fear becoming entangled with the psychological baggage of another person.

Our clients are always amazed how the horses appear to magically respond to them or play out what the client is experiencing in their life. The equine-assisted experience is all about contact, connection and influencing each other as opposed to manipulation, domination or abuse.
